Msgr Antony Patrao
Founder

Since the dawn of human civilization education has been considered an agent of change, a growth driver and a means of empowerment. The importance of education stems from its contribution to personality development, human capital formation and good citizenry. The knowledge and skill acquired by the young generation through the process of education has proved to be a catalyst for nation building activities.

Visionaries in the past have recognized this dominant role of education and have done every thing within their command to propagate education. The role of Christian missionaries in this regard has been pivotal.

Puttur, until the 1950s was an unheralded place in the coastal Karnataka region. As providence would have it Fr Antony Patrao came down to Puttur to minister the religious and spiritual needs of the community. Serving the community he noticed the conspicuous absence of a College to impart Higher Education around the region. The visionary in him prompted Fr Patrao to lead a bandwagon of well meaning education enthusiasts to establish a College. The tireless efforts of Fr Patrao and his associates paid off in the form of St Philomena College, which came into being in 1958. The College under his care began to muster strength after strength before it became full fledged. The insistence on discipline and performance made it a house hold name in Karnataka and neighboring states.
