A HAPPY LIFE

Everyone in their world craves a happy life. Happiness is just a state of mind. It is very difficult to define. Happiness. Sometimes, happiness is related to material glory and splendor. Sometimes, it is associated with the health of a man while to others, it lies in a sort of contentment with whatever one possesses.

People crave happiness. Happiness to them is just a good comfortable dream. The manner of living has various standards. But, one thing is very clear, every man is dissatisfied with his present state of affairs and condition. One always wants more and more of the materialistic assets. A poor man, living on the roadside, maybe aspiring for a house. A house owner may be aspiring for a beautiful bungalow and a bungalow owner may be aspiring for a posh residence and so on.

Thus, the question arises where is real human happiness. Generally, material splendor and prosperity are considered to be the main factor leading to happiness. A wealthy man enjoys all the comforts, luxuries, amenities, and facilities of life. But, does he consider himself to be really happy? A rich man may be unhappy because he, normally is a sick man, being sick, he cannot enjoy all the pleasures of life. He will consider himself to be a condemned and cursed man in this world. We conclude that wealth is not the only criterion of a truly happy life.

Take the life of a poor man. It is an admitted fact that poverty and happiness are diametrically opposed to each other. But, there has been some instance where

We find poor people quite happy and gay. Their minds are not corrupted by the sweeping changes of the time. Their lives are balanced and happy. They feel contented with their small resources and they believe in the following lines of Words Worth: "Be content with what you have little be or much..."

Such people are really happy; their mental state is always calm. Otherwise, there is no end to the desire of human beings. Human desires are infinite. People always want what is not in their possession. So their desire to acquire and possess leads to aspiration, bring frustration, the craze for more things and its unfulfillment leads to unhappiness and melancholy.

Health is also one of the most important factors that promote happiness.

"Nothing is good or bad but thinking makes it so." Everything appears to be pleasant to a happy mind and unpleasant to a diseased mind.

DAKSHINA KANNADA - A COASTAL BEAUTY
* Anuroopa K, II MCOM

Dakshina Kannada was earlier known as South Canara. Tulu is spoken by major communities of people in this region. In 1956 during the re-organization of states, Kasargod was transferred to Kerala district and Dakshina Kannada came under Mysore state. Presently Mangalore is the district headquarters.

Various kings ruled Dakshina Kannada in the past. The district was part of the Vijayanagara empire. The district is famous for its rich traditions and customs. Yakshagana is the popular folk art of the region. Tiger dance is another unique folk dance formed during Dasara. It is well connected by good roads, railway, air, and water transport facilities. Bajpe Airport provides International air connectivity to the district. Panambur harbor provides commercial shipping facility. Many beautiful places are situated in D K.

The district is famous for education and banking. It is known as the cradle of Indian Banking. Industries like tobacco, cashew, and beedi once flourished here. Campeo chocolate factory, MRPL, and other manufacturing industries are presently working in this district. Mangalore University Konaje is in this district. This land is well called "Parashurama Shrishti".
